SYSTEM AND METHOD OF EXERCISING A BROWSER

ABSTRACT

A method of testing browser software in a computer environment includes the steps of generating a list of URLs (Universal Resource Location) using a web crawler, automatically instructing a first browser program to load and render web pages according to the list of URLs, detecting one or more errors in rendering of the first browser program the web pages; and automatically storing information about the one or more errors.